Exploring Error Corpora
L245
Spring 2017

I want you to examine an excerpt from a corpus marked with spelling errors, available from these sites:

- Birkbeck spelling error corpus: http://ota.ox.ac.uk/headers/0643.xml
- Corpora of misspellings for download: http://www.dcs.bbk.ac.uk/~ROGER/corpora.html

Note that this is one of the “Passages taken from the creative writing of about 20 children in a British secondary school in the 1960s, published (with their original misspellings) in ‘English for the Rejected by David Holbrook’

- The format is: <ERR targ=correction> misspelling </ERR>

Here are some points to consider in your examination:

1. Try to classify the errors into natural categories: what types of things is this writer doing?
2. Discuss which misspellings would be more or less difficult for a computer to handle. Why?
3. We are looking at errors produced by a child. What would you expect to be different for an adult?
   Would the errors be the same types and/or would you expect to see the (same) errors in differing amounts?
